The Printing Guide

Beautiful pages from an ordinary home printer

US LETTER · A4 · INK-FRIENDLY BY DESIGN

The Golden Rules

- 1 Match the file to your paper
US Letter files for 8.5 x 11 in paper; A4 files for 210 x 297 mm. The A4 edition is reflowed, not shrunk, so nothing feels cramped.
- 2 Print at 100 percent
In the print dialog choose Actual Size / Scale 100 percent. Fit to Page silently shrinks pages and ruins planner measurements.
- 3 Test one page first
Print a single worksheet, check size and margins with a ruler, then commit to the full document.
- 4 Choose your page range
Very few readers print all pages at once. Print the parts your week needs; the file is not going anywhere.

Color or grayscale?

Both work. The palette was chosen so that gold rules and indigo headings degrade gracefully to grayscale; worksheets stay fully readable. If ink is precious, print the interior in grayscale and save color for the cover and dividers, or skip the dark pages entirely using your printer's page-range field.

Duplex, Paper & Ink

Double-sided printing

The main workbook is comfortable single- or double-sided; for duplex choose flip on long edge in your print dialog. Planner editions use mirrored margins, so duplex works beautifully there; the Planner Insert Guide covers the details, including the two-page alignment test.

Paper that flatters the design

- Everyday: any 20 lb / 80 gsm copy paper is fine for worksheets.
- Lovely: 24-28 lb / 90-105 gsm smooth white paper makes writing pages feel substantial.
- Cards and tabs: 65-80 lb / 176-216 gsm cardstock.
- Fountain-pen users: look for paper marked laser-guaranteed or with a smooth calendered finish to limit feathering.

Professional printing

Any copy shop can print the PDFs; ask for 100 percent scale, single-sided or duplex long-edge, and paper from the list above. A spiral bind with a clear cover turns the workbook into a keepsake. Shops will print your personal copy; if one asks about copyright, show them the license page, which permits personal-use printing.

Ink-saving summary: grayscale interior, skip dark divider pages (they are listed in the bookmarks panel), and never reprint what a page range could have avoided.

A test [✱]page today saves a ream tomorrow.
